Careful Management.

Means Insurance on More Substantial Basis.

Three Kansas mutual live stock insurance companies, two of them located in Topeka, are affected by an arbitrary ruling today by Carey Wilson, state superintendent of insurance, in state superintendent of insurance, in which a 50 per cent premium reserve is required. Wilson's order compels the companies to set aside at least 10 per cent of their premium income for reserve every month until the full reserve is established.

The Wilson ruling is not based on a statutory provision and is made to meet a situation not covered by the reserved insurance laws of the state.

general insurance laws of the state. There is no law in Kansas specifically referring to mutual live stock insurance companies, according to Superin-tendent Wilson, who investigated the matter carefully before making his ruling. The companies affected are chartered under the general insurance laws of the state which were made to apply to joint stock companies only. Because of the situation, it was difficult for the insurance department to find a basis for the solvency of the mutuals. As a 50 per cent premium mutuals. As a 50 per cent premium reserve is required under the general insurance laws. Wilson decided a similar provision would put the live stock companies in good standing. For that reason the order was made. Refused to Obey Order of Court to Go to School.

Yonkers, N. Y., April 21.—Seven boys, alleged leaders in a school strike, were in Jail today owing to their refusal to obey the order of Judge Beall to return to their classes. The mother of another boy was found guilty yesterday of violating the educational law in refusing to permit her son to return to school until the board of education had promised to re-employ William F. Maxson, their principles. The members of the city commission are favorably inclined to the sadoption of voting machines. "Personally, I am in favor of the machines," said Mayor House. "I believe they are a step in the right direction, but as mayor I shall be guided by whatever seems to be the wish of the majority of the people. If the people wish to buy voting machines, I am in favor of their doing so."

Some planting has begun, and with land ready, as it now is, the full crop will be planted in a shorter space of time, thus releasing farmers from their spring work earlier than usual.

Lianity. The process by which he became an evolutionist was explained, it step by step, by the man who succeeded it the pulpit of Beecher. Darder win's "Origin of Species," he said, did not interest him. He didn't even read it. But when "Descent of Man" appeared he felt that theentire system upon which his theology was based had been challenged.

Exhaustive investigation and examination of the proofs offered by geologists finally convinced him that the book of Genesis was not literally true. He abandoned belief in the orthodox conception of the fall of man and the transmission of original sin along with the theory that the world was only 6,000 years old.

He insisted, however, that disbellef in original sin did not carry with it disbellef in the consequences of sin or the need of redemption.
